To expand health program

PRCC asks for millage increase

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER
The Hancock County Board of Supervisors met Thursday to discuss final aspects of their 1994-95 budget before finalizing it.

Ted Alexander, president of Pearl River Community College, met with the supervisors to ask for an increase in their millage to use to expand their allied health programs.

Alexander told the board that they needed $33,000 for the project, but would like to have a quarter of a mill.

The supervisors said that they would be willing to find the $33,000 to give to the college, but did not want to raise millage and would not. In order to give the college the quarter of a mill increase that they requested, the county would have to raise the millage.

Supervisor Alton "Dolph" Kellar told Alexander that each year the millage amount would increase and that if they gave him the quarter of a mill that they would eventually be getting more than $33,000.

Alexander said that what the college will be doing with the additional funding is expanding the nursing program so that double the amount of students would be able to attend.

Alexander said that a new nursing facility would be built and that currently the program is being taught out of a 70-year-old building which does not have the wiring capabilities to handle the computers needed.

He also told the board that the project is at an estimated cost of $3.6 million and that $2.6 million of that will come from state bond monies.

The other one million would come from the six counties in the school's district.

Alexander told the board that the levy for the college has not been raised in seven years and he promised the board that he would not request another increase for several more years.

The board agreed that the funding was needed, but would not give the college the quarter of a mill requested. They did, however, agree to allocate $33,000 to the school for the next 15 years.

Library director Prima Plauche' also explained to the board about why so many walls were torn down so that the library could be renovated.

Plauche' told the board that there were 14 angled walls on the old library that had to come down so that the building could be expanded.

"The architect who designed the original library designed it the way that it was to best utilize the way that the land was shaped. We had an odd-shaped building on an odd-shaped lot," Plauche' said.

But, the engineer did allow for future expansion by making the exterior walls out of nothing more than concrete blocks, Plauche' said.

"There was no insulation or anything there, so it was just a matter of knocking them down," she said.

Plauche' told the board that it would look like a mess for a while, but she felt that the citizens of the county and the supervisors would be pleased with the outcome.

She said that she apologizes if she did not make it clear enough to the board that so many walls would be coming down, but that had always been

Restriction is removed from B & B operation

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

Finally, a bed and breakfast has won one small battle with the Planning and Zoning Commission in Bay St. Louis.

Judy Lipscomb, owner of Bay Town Inn bed and breakfast located at 208 North Beach Boulevard, convinced the Planning and Zoning Commission, at its meeting on Wednesday, to allow her name to be removed from the special exceptions and restrictions placed on her bed and breakfast so that any potential buyer could operate it.

Lipscomb asked that three restrictions be removed from the property.

One of the restrictions concerned the limitation of serving one meal, breakfast, to overnight guests.

Another restriction that Lipscomb wanted removed was that the property not be made available for rental or paid use by non-bed and breakfast guests for parties, suppers, bar tours and such uses not normally involved in simply providing

Commission meets on Ward Two

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

The Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission held their next to last public hearing, concerning a total rezoning of the city, Thursday night at the Bay High Auditorium for Ward Two.

Residents of Ward Two and other citizens of Bay St. Louis were present to air their beliefs, goals and outlooks concerning the future of the city.

Michael Hemsley, a resident of Ward Two, said that residents of that ward are "blessed."

"We do need development, but the type of development should enhance the town," Hemsley said.

Hemsley also said that he felt that the beach was an important asset and should be developed for seawall protection.

"The beach and water should reflect the nature of the area," Hemsley added.

Another resident of Ward Two, Laura Piazza, said that she has complete trust in the commission and whatever decisions they should make.

She also said that she feels that any non-residents of Ward Two should not be allowed to speak about the ward because whatever happens there will not directly affect them.

Dorothy McLemore, who acknowledged that she is not a resident of the ward, said that downtown and the area surrounding it is a main focal point of the city for tourists and other people coming into the area.

"It also seems to be the most COMMISSION—Page 3A

Crews work on Blue Meadow

City cut costs of road project

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

Blue Meadow Road has been widened at a lesser expense to the city by using city workers and personnel.

The total cost of the project was $150,000, but would have cost more if the project had been done by contractors.

"The project would have probably cost twice as much if we would have contracted it out. We are very fortunate that we have people on our staff that have the know how to perform this type of project," City Public Works director Ron Vanney said.

Vanney said that the only work done by contractors was the curbing and asphalt and that the curbing cost was minimal since only labor cost was involved. The curbing cost less than $5,000 Vanney added.

Blue Meadow Road, off Hwy. 90, used as an access road to Casino Magic and the road on which Bay High School is located, has been widened by the city of Bay St. Louis.

Bay St. Louis City Councilman Charles Scianna said that the project was paid for by city funds. Planning was done by the city engineer and the road work was done by city crews.

"This was part of a long-range plan for development of Blue Meadow Road to ease traffic flow to Casino Magic and Bay High School," Scianna said.

Widening the road and putting in turning lanes is phase one of the project.

Improvements are also being considered for the street to Casino Magic Drive. Scianna said that it has not been decided when that phase of the project will start, since the design engineering and cost estimates have to first be completed. The city would also like to use monies from House Bill 1302, which is being used to widen Hwy. 603, for this leg of the project.

House Bill 1302 is a $325 million project for counties impacted by gaming.

According to a study done by Burk-Kleinpeter for Gulf Regional Planning Commission, 80 percent of the traffic on Blue Meadow Road is casino traffic.

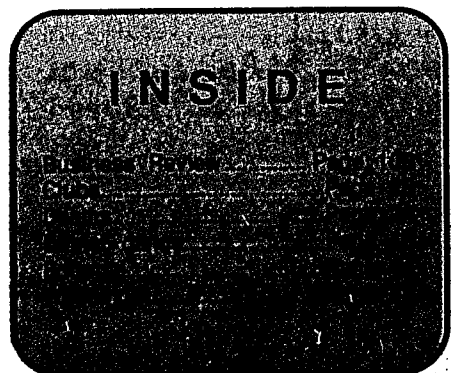

The Blue Meadow Road project is currently 75 percent complete, but another asphalt overlay is scheduled for October so that the asphalt laid this week has time to settle, Vanney said.

A wider meadow

City workers are shown here spreading gravel on Blue Meadow Road for its expansion. The base has been completed and striping should be finished, weather permitting, by the end of next week. Turning lanes will also be put in place to accommodate Bay High School and Casino Magic traffic.

In Loving Memory of
ROLAND TAILLAC AND JUDY TAILLAC WATSON

August brings back the memories of all the times we shared, Birthday wishes and all those gifts to show how much we cared. It's so hard now without you both here.

No Happy Birthday song, party, no cheer.

There must have been a reason the Lord chose both of you. He had to know you both were close.

And being apart would never do. We didn't have a choice, we weren't even asked.

We were forced to give you up without a second chance.

If we could have known His timing and sound of His call, A plea to the Heavens above would have come from us all.

We would have asked for just one more day.

To hug you, love you, and kiss the tears away.

So, Happy Birthday, Roland and Judy, too.

We know that you both are celebrating in joy as we used to do.

Loved and missed by Louise and Family

Teach young children

AAA Mississippi says parents should stress safety from the beginning.

Although more than 22 million pupils nationally ride school buses each day, including 400,293 here in Mississippi, being transported to school generally poses few dangers.

However, AAA Mississippi warns it is not completely without risk. During the 1993-94 school year in Mississippi, 339 students were involved in school bus accidents.

Knowing where to stand and being alert to traffic while waiting for the bus, behaving while riding it and exiting safely can make an important difference in a student's life.

"As you would expect, students are injured most often when the school bus approaches or leaves a loading area," said Danon Jones, director of Public and Government Relations for AAA Mississippi.

"Incidents usually occur when children near the bus move out of the driver's line of sight. This might happen when they bend down to pick up a dropped article, or walk behind the bus or where they can't be seen by the driver."

To ensure that the ride to and from school is as safe as possible, AAA Mississippi offers these safety tips for parents of first-time school bus riders:

* Make sure the student leaves home early enough to reach the bus on time and that the student is not running or playing in the street. AAA Mississippi also suggests that parents teach their children to look for the school bus and to stand in the line of sight of the driver.

* Tell youngsters to remain seated while the bus is in motion.

* Stress the importance of keeping aisles clear at all times. Backpacks or lunch boxes should never be left where someone might trip over them.

* Make sure your child knows the dangers of throwing things inside the bus or out the window. An object might hit the school bus driver or another motorist who might lose control and cause a collision.

* Let children know the importance of keeping their head and arms inside the bus at all times.

* When exiting, remind students to avoid snagging backpack straps, drawstrings or loose clothing on bus handrails. If they need to cross the street, tell them to do so well in front of the bus where they can see the bus driver. This way, there is a good chance the driver can see them, too.

AAA Mississippi also has tips for motorists who drive through school zones or on roads with school buses:

* While driving when children are visible or in school zones, drive five miles under the posted limits with the lights comfortable overnight accommodations and a morning meal.

Lipscomb said that she would like to have small weddings and receptions in the home, with no more than 40 to 50 guests, and that they would not last longer than two to three hours.

She said that she would also like to have small dinner parties.

These types of things, she said, would mostly be done in the off-season, winter months, not during the entire year. She also said that she could not and would not hold these functions if she had guests in the home. She also said that these type functions would be held only during the daytime or early evening hours.

The third restriction that Lipscomb would have liked to have seen removed, pertained to ownership of the bed and the intention.

"The new will be wrapped around the old. This was the most cost effective way of renovating the library," Plauche said.

Concerning the library board budget, the supervisors agreed to give the library system $320,000 but this would be the last time.

The board told Plauche that after this coming budget year they would only receive two mills, plus the gaming monies that they are to receive.

The board also agreed to lease 20-25 parking places from the Sea Coast Echo for county employees parking at the rate of $200 per month.

The exception states that the special exception be contingent on continuous ownership and operation by the applicant, Judith D. Lipscomb.

Lipscomb told the commission that this was a deterrent for any potential buyer or lender to become involved in the situation.

"No lender will start their process until they know that the potential buyer will have approval through the commission and no potential buyer wants to go through the hassle if they can't get the funding. It is a continuous circle," Lipscomb said.

The commission agreed to remove that restriction concerning ownership by Lipscomb and no others at this point. The commission said that they would notify people in the neighborhood of what Lipscomb is requesting and that another meeting will be held concerning this matter.

The bed and breakfast is for sale at this point. Lipscomb said that it is listed, but at this time there are no potential buyers.

difficult one to zone," she said. McLemore said that the commercial and residential areas need to be better integrated.

"This really needs to be worked on because the commercial area does not develop. You need to keep the residents happy. Some type of public relations program needs to be established to attract people into the Main Street area for small scale businesses," McLemore said. She also added that a buffer needed to be placed between residential and commercial locations.

Franya Ethridge said that the district was very unique and the historical makeup of the area needed to be preserved through historical preservation ordinances.

The commission notified the residents that there is currently no historical preservation district, that there were homes on the National Register, but no district has been established.

Piazza said that real issues and problems needed to be discussed and possible solutions given.

Kevin Fitzpatrick agreed that sometimes other topics do come up and suggested that maybe one topic the residents could give some suggestions on was traffic in the downtown and Main Street areas.

Fitzpatrick said that it had been suggested to make traffic on Beach Boulevard one way.

The residents were not pleased with that idea, but made other suggestions concerning parking and deliveries to restaurants and lounges along the beach.

Many cited the fact that when exiting many streets onto Beach Boulevard drivers cannot tell if there is oncoming traffic because of parked vehicles.

Beautification of the area was discussed and Ethridge discussed landscaping of the ground near the sidewalks and repairing the sidewalks along Main Street. She also suggested that some type of ordinance be made describing what type of fence people should have in their yard.

"Who cares what type of fence people put around their yard. That is ridiculous," Piazza said.

The last meeting in the series of workshops for the Planning and Zoning Commission will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 18. This meeting will be concerning Ward 3.

...and I have sold their sites ... during the coming season.

And you can't imagine the rabbit and squirrel ... and really enjoyed every minute of it. Of course there were no deer in Hancock County when I first started to hunt, as they were added in later years with restocking efforts of the conservation department.

I did manage to do some bambi hunting and even tried to get me a gobbler a few times.

Before a youngster can hunt today, he must attend a series of hunter education classes.

Andy Elchos, conservation officer from Waveland, will be conducting night classes from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. each night.

The first series will be held Aug. 29, 30 and 31 at the Pearlinton Community Center, with another set for Sept. 20, 21, 22, and 24 at the Bayou Phillip Community Center, Highway 90, Waveland West; also Oct. 4, 5, 6 and 8 at the Fenton Community Center, Kiln-DeLisle Road; and Nov. 8, 9, 10 and 12, Standard-Necaise Crossing Community Center Hwy. 53 & 604.

Elchos said the reason for having four series of classes is to make it more convenient for residents of the respective areas.

He said it is also necessary for hunters to have completed the hunter education classes if they plan on going to other states to hunt.

For further information, contact Elchos at 467-3321.

School is in, and it seems as I have been driving about town, I did notice a few smiles on the faces of students.

Some parents are relieved that school is once again open, yet many are trying to work in the new time schedules.

One gets set in a routine, and parents with children in school have to make some changes when the bell starts to ring once again.

A group we hardly ever hear about receiving any praises are bus drivers.

Theirs is a very important job and carries a lot of responsibility when they are transporting some 40 or so students on their buses.

The buses have to be ready to roll rain, cold, or shine, and bus drivers are the first school employees to report to work each morning and the last to get off in the evenings.

Hats off to all school bus drivers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reader says lot owners should maintain ditches, etc.

Dear Editor:

How many tax dollars does each piece of vacant land cost the city to maintain?

I'll bet no one knows! However, ditches must be maintained, curb grass cut, and in some cases new water, gas or sewerage lines installed — all at no cost to those taxpayers — so you can be sure vacant land costs the cities much more than taxes collected.

All those city services increase land value for the landowners. It has been said some $3,000 to $4,000 per lot. Stop those freebies!

I propose:

1. Every property owner cuts the grass which fronts his land or pay the city for this service. (Homeowners now cut their own grass relieving the city of this cost, so every landowner should pay his own way).

2. Every property owner who has his street paved or utilities laid in front of his land should pay a front footage fee.

Only when vacant land is occupied with a home or business does the city begin to break even for services provided — through higher taxes and utility charges.

Remember, you're paying those ridiculously high water and sewer bills because others don't pay their fair share. So, ask the wannabe mayors and aldermen how do they intend to address this issue.

I'll quit tomorrow

Dear Editor,

For the past 30 years, I must have said these words a thousand times. For a four-year period in my life, I did manage to stop drinking.

By no means was it through my own willpower alone. I learned of a Higher Power, whom I choose to call God. I came to know this Great Power by attending a 12-step recovery program.

I attended many meetings and met a lot of good people, who were willing to help me as someone had helped them. I learned I had a disease called alcoholism, which has no known cure.

The good news was, I could live in a life of recovery by just not picking up that first drink, one day at a time. I must say that was a great four-year time in my life.

I am now 49 years old and my new address is the Hancock Justice Facility, which is a fancy word for jail. I received two ten-year sentences for DUI and DUI causing bodily injury.

I have no resentments towards anyone for having to be here. I feel I am where I need to be for what I did.

For a long time I seemed to have forgotten about that Great Power, but I found my friend again by helping with a 12-step recovery program in here. I am sort of a senior citizen in here.

Most people, men and women alike who come in here, are much younger than I. We share our stories with one another in our meetings; this way we are helping one another. There are some in here who are trying to become a better person.

Of course, there are those who just don't care and they usually are back in here a short time after they get out.

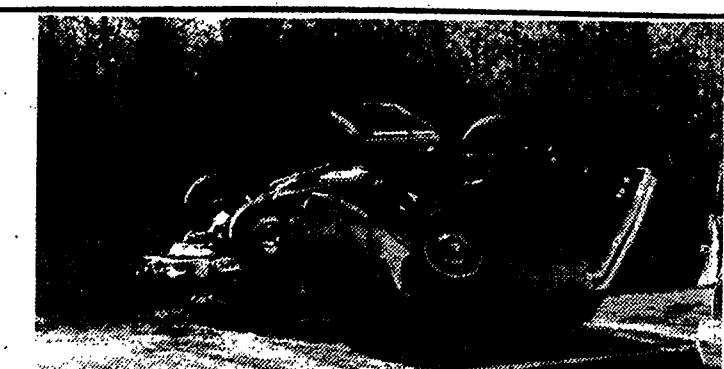

This brings up the question of why does someone abuse his or her body with alcohol and drugs when they know they could end up in jail or even worse, dead. This can happen to anyone who does not seek help for this killing disease.

My answer to this question is simple, make your Higher Power your best friend, for He will be there when no one else will.

Go to His 12-step recovery meetings. Because in my heart I know He had to be the driving force behind getting this program to where it is today.

The best thing, the program is free, and that Great Power has many of His workers throughout the world to give away what someone gave them.

Sincerely,
Nick A. Kingston

State Auditor reveals how child care money is misused

The cruelest kind of abuse of public funds is the wasteful spending of money intended to go for the benefit of children.

State Auditor Steve Patterson last week documented how $8.3 million in mostly federal and some state funds intended to provide systematic child care for the working poor was callously thrown away through the state Department of Human Services last year by those who were paid to serve child care needs.

Instead of using money on child care services that are mandated by the 1988 federal act (remember, that was during the Bush administration) large chunks of collars went to such outrageous things as landscaping one person's home to another buying exotic gadgets such as designer salt and pepper shakers. One contractor even used $40,000 to renovate a rental building used for child care.

All of this contained in Patterson's audit investigation has been called to the attention of federal authorities by Patterson, and this week officials from both the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and the office of Inspector General are in the state to conduct an investigation of the state Department of Human Services child care program.

"The great bulk of waste and abuse of the child care grants took place when the state child care grant program was directed by Ruth Ann Williams, wife of one of Gov. Kirk Fordice's closest supporters in the 1991 election, Liles Williams. Williams, in fact, was head of Fordice's transition team before the Fordice inauguration in January, 1992.

Ruth Ann Williams, who is no longer with DHS, had asked for and was given the high ranking state job to run child care grants when Sue Hawthorn was made executive director of DHS in the spring of 1992.

It's evident (and many close observers of the state human services agency knew back then) that Ruth Ann Williams was given child care grant contracts to many individuals who were politically or personally connected or who were a part of the Religious Right movement she strongly advocates.

In one instance the wife of now-state Supreme Court Justice Jim Smith, the first Republican to be elected to the Supreme Court in 1992, was given a child care grant. Another went to a white woman professor at Jackson State University under whom Ruth Ann Williams was a student, and who reportedly approved a master's degree program for Williams which did not require her classroom presence.

Gregg Phillips, the Fordice "trouble-shooter" who became director of DHS in September, 1993, eased Williams out of heading child-care grants and she resigned. Last week when Patterson aired his charges, Phillips petulantly took umbrage to it as "political grandstanding" and took credit for having given Patterson the information on the abuses in the first place.

To that, Patterson fired back that Phillips was a "liar" and the State Auditor provided documentation showing that the auditor's investigators had purposely not gone over the same ground as the DHS's own in-house investigators.

Besides, if all of this was old hat, Patterson maintained, why hadn't Phillips already turned the child care grant abuses over to Attorney General Mike Moore to demand a restitution?

An air of nonchalance still exists at DHS toward the administration of child care grant money even now, Patterson said, although the $8.3 million in abuses of grant money he cited were only those that took place before July 1, 1993.

A key spokesman for welfare children's causes, Rims Barber, director of the Mississippi Human Services Agenda, is even more emphatic about what is still happening in child care programs at the present time.

There's a pattern pervasive in the DHS child care grants, he said, to fit the Fordice ideological theme, namely to find providers who operate for a profit, rather than not-for-profit traditional community organizations. Most of non-profit groups are in the black community.

The upshot, Barber said, is that "We have lots of working mothers who are trying to work their way off welfare who aren't able to get child care." He reminded that child care for working poor mothers is an entitlement under the 1988 Family Support Act, for which the Mississippi Legislature provides matching state funds.

Barber last week brought out several young mothers who have had to drop out of school because there was no child care slot being made available under the inadequate DHS child care program.

In one south west Mississippi county he said, the entire child care program has been shut down by DHS.

"DHS has the funds, but they are not using them to implement an entitlement for poor mothers trying to work their way off welfare," Barber said.

Child care is not the only program under DHS that has Barber concerned.

Last February, when Phillips was being confirmed by the state Senate as director of DHS, he stated that he had already obtained a waiver from the federal government to institute a reform program eliminating all welfare programs (including food stamps) in six Mississippi counties and using the money for those programs to subsidize a job program for welfare recipients.

As of last week, that waiver from the federal government had not been received, because the feds are not satisfied that it will work as the Mississippi agency says it will.

School tips

Good-guy orning-may olks-fay! Just a little something I learned in school so I could say I was bi-lingual on job applications. Translated, it means good morning, folks.

Speaking of school, can you believe it's already time for another semester to begin? Once again for nine months parents will be forced to face sleepy-eyed children they haven't seen all summer.

The battle of parents getting their kids up for school officially begins Monday morning in most areas.

Fortunately, all the children of the community will not have to endure the pressures of school empty-handed. That's right, kids, Uncle Brewer has some tips to help you cope this year.

Tip No. 1 — Do not get out of bed the first time your mom wakes you up. You still have plenty of time. She will wake you up at least eight or nine more times.

If you can manage to stay in bed long enough, you may be able to get away without making your bed. However, if you find your covers suddenly ripped from your bed and find your mother's face three inches from your nose as she is screaming obscenities, it is time to get up.

Tip No. 2 — Do not look directly at your sister sitting across the breakfast table from you. Sisters can be extremely volatile and unpredictable in the morning.

If she happens to have discovered a blemish or cannot find anything to wear, she will be ready to explode at any second.

Tip No. 3 — Do not forget to collect your lunch money before you leave. I also suggest you bag a couple of cookies or a twinkie before departing. These items are excellent trading material.

With some practice you will be able to trade a twinkie for things such as test answers, girls' phone numbers, and in some cases even cash!

Tip No. 4 — Do not go to sleep in your history class if your teacher looks like your grandmother and carries a large wooden yard stick with her.

Also, it is not a good idea to sleep in class if you have a tendency to slobber while snoozing. Many a times I awoke to find a string of spit coming from the corner of my mouth and resting in a puddle on my text book.

Tip No. 5 — Get yourself a red pen and learn to write like your teacher. If you make an F on that algebra test, with very little effort you can make an F look like an E for excellent.

However, if you find yourself old enough to rent a car and are still in the ninth grade, it is time to give up the pen trick.

Tip No. 6 — Take a home economics course. Not only will you most likely be the only dude in the class, it is the only time where eating in class is allowed.

Note: Do not eat the food you cook if your cake is roughly the same thickness and color as a round sausage.

Okay you budding scientists and doctors, put a smile on, hold your head up high and give it your best shot.

All you young dudes and dudettes who are still in school get the praise for do-gooders this week. Stay in school and be happy. Peace.

Campaign to help reduce SIDS

A coalition of federal and private agencies, including the U.S. Public Health Service and the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation has launched "Back to Sleep," a national education campaign to teach parents to put healthy babies on their back or side to sleep in order to help reduce the risk of sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS).

Some 83 infants in Mississippi died of SIDS in 1992, making this condition one of the major causes of infant death among babies age one month to one year.

"Traditionally, American parents have placed their babies on their stomachs to sleep," says Kenneth G. Perry Jr., MD, assistant professor of maternal and fetal medicine at the University of Mississippi Medical Center in Jackson.

"It is the goal of the campaign to reverse this practice and to have all healthy babies sleeping on their back or side. This includes nap times as well as nightly sleep."

The recommendation for healthy newborns to sleep on their backs or sides was first made by the American Academy of Pediatrics in 1992. At that time, there were still some concerns about possible potential adverse effects from sleeping on the back, such as choking or an increase in cases of aspiration pneumonia.

Since 1992, however, more information has become available from international data on sleeping positions and SIDS and from preliminary data in the U.S.

In New Zealand, Australia, Great Britain, Norway and the Netherlands, countries that have encouraged back or side sleeping for infants, there have been decreases of 50 percent or more in the incidence of SIDS.

This drop has coincided with a decrease in the number of infants sleeping in the face-down position. In addition, no adverse side effects from back or side sleeping have been found.

According to the campaign, there are a few infants, such as those born prematurely or with certain birth defects, or those experiencing excessive vomiting or breathing problems, for whom the face-down sleep position may still be preferable.

Parents and infant care givers should consult their doctor about which sleep position to use for these babies.

U.S. Surgeon General M. Jockey Elders, MD, a pediatrician says, "The simple act of putting a baby to sleep on its back or side provides us with the most promising intervention we have ever had to reduce the number of babies who die of SIDS in the U.S."

She says the "Back to Sleep" campaign hopes to reduce the number of babies who sleep face down from the current 45 percent to below 10 percent.

Radio, television and print public service announcements for the "Back to Sleep" campaign will be appearing nationwide. In addition, the campaign consists of a poster; a hospital take-home reminder card for new mothers; crib stickers; and two free brochures, one for parents, babysitters and others responsible for the care of young infants, and another for health care providers.

To request a free "Back to Sleep" brochure or other materials, call the Mississippi March of Dimes at 1-800-842-5117, or send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Mississippi March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, 4800 McWillie Circle, Suite A-4, Jackson, MS 39206, call 1-800-505-CRIB, or write "Back to Sleep," P.O. ## Hay problems could add to state's cattle woes

Mississippi's cattle producers face a long, hard winter as market prices remain low and feed costs promise little help. Rains have hurt hay quality to the point that most farmers already are planning for winter feed supplements.

Dr. Charlie Forrest, extension agricultural economist at Mississippi State University, said cattle prices hit a seven-year low this year and are expected to remain lower than 1993 levels for the rest of 1994.

"The state may not have a hay shortage in terms of quantity, but quality hay will be much harder to find because of all the rains this summer," Forrest said.

"Poorer quality hay will increase the cost of cattle production as producers have to use more supplements than normal and pay higher prices for any quality hay they can find."

Dr. Bill Tucker of MSU's animal and dairy sciences department said several factors go into making quality hay. The stage of maturity at cutting is extremely important. As grass matures, tonnage increases, but quality drops. Cutting too young is unwise because yields will be low.

"Few honest Mississippians will claim to have made good hay during the past month," Tucker said. "Rain reduces the quality of hay by taking nutrients from the plants as well as promoting spoilage. Rain shortly after cutting is less likely to damage hay than a good soaking after hay has almost cured."

Jones County agricultural agent James Minor said quality has been lost as rains delayed timely cuttings and then fell on hay before it could be baled and hauled.

"Most of our cattle producers have access to chicken houses, which will be an important source of cattle feed supplementation this winter," Minor said. "Chicken litter is less expensive and higher protein source than most other mineral supplements."

Minor said chicken litter is about one-fourth the cost of other supplements and provides 18 to 36 percent of digestible protein compared to about 22 percent digestible protein from other sources.

Tippah County agent Ricky Ferguson said quantities are high, but quality hay is rare. "Farmers haven't been able to cut at the right stage and then couldn't get the hay baled and out of the fields before more rains hit," Ferguson said. "Many producers will run forage samples to see what kinds of supplements will be needed."

Farmers across the state are hoping for better weather in the next six weeks to enable one last cutting of a better quality crop than previous cuttings. Then farmers will be looking for enough moisture to provide sufficient pasture growth and a late frost before winter arrives.

Ferguson said farmers probably will plant more rye grass for winter feeding if the weather cooperates.

Some farmers may find that rye grass seed is more expensive in 1994 due to a seed shortage.

Houston Therrell, general manager of the Hinds County Farm Supply in Raymond, said rye grass seed prices are running about 10 to 15 percent higher than this time last year.

Therrell said he anticipates increases sales in range meal and cubes and other forms of mineral supplements during the coming winter.

Absentee voting begins Sept. 26

Friday, Sept. 9 is the deadline to register by mail if you want to vote in Mississippi's Nov. 8 general election.

Secretary of State Dick Molpus said mail-in registration applications can be obtained from circuit clerks, municipal clerks, and in many public facilities, such as libraries.

"Mail-in registration is a convenient way to register for the first time or to let elections administrators know you have changed your residence," said Molpus, the state's chief elections officer.

Mail-in registration has been in effect since July 1992, and nearly 30,000 persons have used the method.

Other election deadlines include:

- Sept. 9, the qualifying deadline for local special election candidates and those running for county school boards. Questions about those races should be directed to the county circuit clerk's office.
- Sept. 26, absentee voting for the general election can begin to occur in the circuit clerk's office. Persons may also make application to vote absentee by mail.
- Oct. 8 by noon, to register in the circuit clerk's office if you want to vote in the Nov. 8 general election. During the week of Oct. 3-7, the office will be open from 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. for voter registration.

IS A SUBJECT FOR EVERYONE!

Now that school is back in session, it's vital that you exercise additional caution on the roads and advise your children to look both ways before crossing the street.

It's also important to warn your children against going anywhere with someone they don't know or eating anything given to them by a stranger.

These days, you just can't be too careful!

Hancock gears up for Sept. 17 clean

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

Hancock Countians will join thousands on Saturday, September 17, which has been designated as International Coastal Cleanup Day, Ellis C. Cuevas, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Beautification chairman said.

Darlene Underwood will serve as the cleanup day chairman with Betsy Ashman as co-chairman for Hancock County's activities.

Cuevas said, "This will be the eighth time the Mississippi Marine Trash Task Force (Hancock-Harrison and Jackson Counties) will coordinate the cleanup."

In 1993 a record number of 2600 volunteers took part in the tri-county cleanup in which over 21 tons of trash from 85 miles of coastline was collected. There were thirty-six states and 55 counties who participated in the 1993 cleanup.

"We're hoping for another record number of residents to participate this year," Kay Baltar, of Bay St. Louis, this year's Task Force chairperson said.

"In Hancock we take this opportunity to do an entire county cleanup in conjunction with the beach cleanup," Carol Vegas, chamber beautification vice-chairman said.

Hancock County's beach cleanup organized efforts began nine years ago when there was no regular government designated beach maintenance crews.

Now the chamber's beautification committee works in conjunction with the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, Diamondhead Business and Professional and Rotary Club, in addition to other community and individual cleanup endeavors.

A big push is underway by the chamber's beautification committee on beautification of the medians on Highway 90 and the soon to be completed Highway 603.

"The committee invisions the creation of a landscape 'parkway' from the Bay St. Louis bridge to the West Waveland line and North on Highway 603 to Interstate 10," Vegas added.

"In order for the Saturday September 17 cleanup to be successful, we will need the full support of all of our organizations, business and citizens," Underwood said.

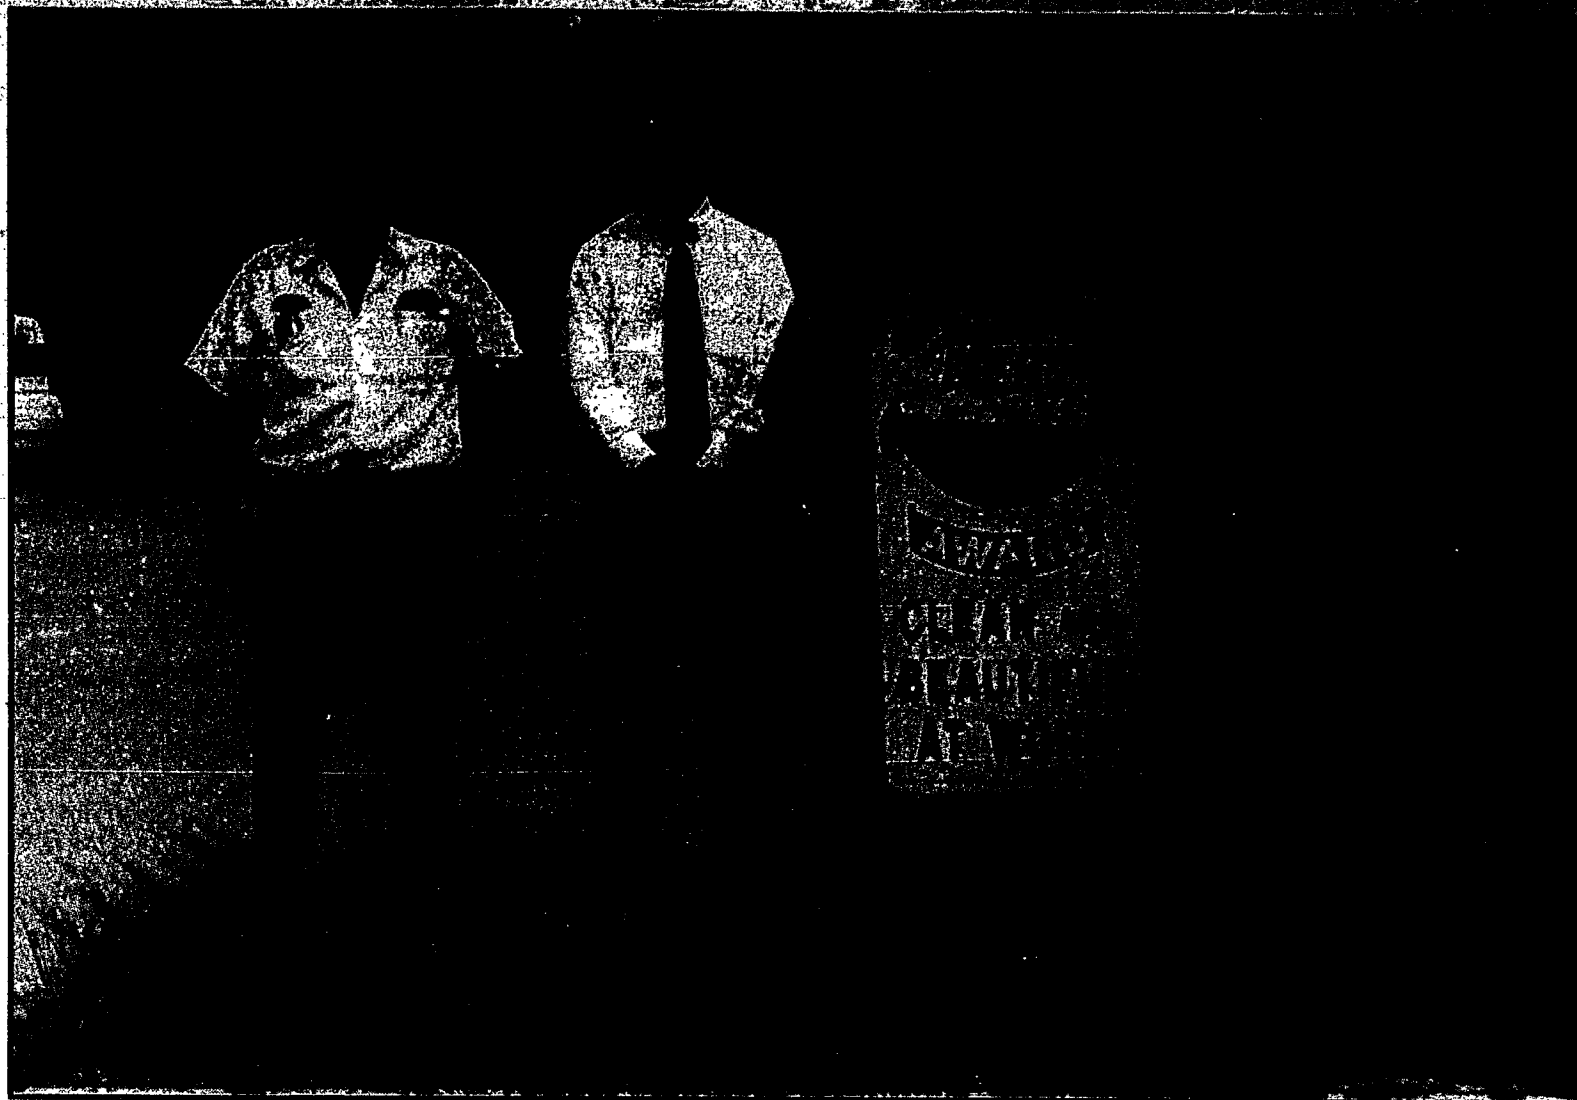

"One of the reasons we feel it is necessary to clean the entire county is because we have so many streams and rivers and all litter eventually will drain into the Gulf of Mexico," Ashman said.

Joey Boudin, owner of Boudin's Waste and Recycling Service, will assist in the collection of the litter for disposal on the cleanup day.

All pickup points will be announced at a later date.

"Good government only happens when we remember that government is-of the people and by the people, as well as for the people," Vegas said.

For further information on the Hancock County cleanup, call 467-9048; or Harrison, 896-0055; and Jackson, 7628443.

A Special Farewell to the Graduate
Kiddie Kare Train
As I look back through the years
I remember the day we met
You just six weeks new with your proud mama and dada
I know how much they loved you as it is very plain to see
A bit as they looked around making sure they could trust you would be safe and sound
From that day on we shared as you grew, your first steps, first words, and even the tantrums you threw
So as you go to "big" school, I want you to know how proud we are to have given you your first start and to let you know that you will always be loved
Parents, thanks for all we shared and the trust you bestowed in us
Your child has been a special part of my life and has made my work at Kiddie Kare a real joy
I would also like to thank my staff, especially Kim Green and Suzanne Hinkel, for all the extras they do making the children and their families feel welcome and at home
Congratulations, Kiddie Kare graduates!
